BOARD SEEKING NEW DIRECTORS

Are health and wellness in Francophone minority communities important to you?
Are you interested in helping to promote access to health and social services adapted to the language and cultural diversity of Nunavut's Francophone population?

Réseau Santé en français au Nunavut (RÉSEFAN) is seeking to recruit new members for its Board of directors.

If you have experience in one of the following five key health or social services roles:

- Policymaker at the government level
- Director or staff of a post-secondary educational institution
- Health services manager
- Francophone community representative
- Health or social services professional

CONSIDER JOINING RÉSEFAN'S BOARD OF DIRECTORS!

We are a multidisciplinary professional team mandated to represent the territory's Franco-Nunavut community and work with various groups of partners essential to improving access to French health services.

- ✓ 6 to 7 meetings per year in person or via videoconference
- ✓ Opportunities to contribute to the deployment of RÉSEFAN's projects and nationwide initiatives
- ✓ A uniquely rewarding networking experience in the health sector

To apply, please email your expression of interest to Jérémie Roberge, Executive Director, at jroberge@resefan.ca.

WHO WE ARE

RÉSEFAN is a non-profit organization in the Canadian Francophonie funded by Health Canada and dedicated to the health of Francophones in Nunavut. It accomplishes its mission by promoting health and well-being and supporting access to health services adapted to the language and cultural diversity of Nunavut's Francophone population.

RÉSEFAN is part of a dynamic nationwide coalition sharing a collective aim to promote health development in French for Francophone and Acadian minority communities across Canada. Société Santé en français and the 16 networks in all 12 provinces and territories outside of Quebec strive to bring together partners interested in improving access to health and social services in French.
